"DOVE ANDARE PER...!", THE MILAN GUIDE FOR THE HOMELESS IS PUBLISHED

Distributed free of charge the booklet produced by Avvocato di strada ODV in collaboration with Linklaters, DIGITAL360, CityAngels and Chiesa Valdese, sponsored by the Municipality of Milan, with information on all useful services for people living on the street

MILAN, January 25, 2024 - Where to go in Milan to find a blanket, a hot meal, shelter, medicine, where to wash and dress, where to get help in case of emergency, counselling and guidance, where to get legal assistance and free advocacy, where to look for a job, where to get a fictitious residence to have access to welfare and citizenship services. All this information is contained in "Dove andare per...", the Milan guide for homeless people produced by Avvocato di strada ODV, the association that offers free legal protection to people living on the street, in collaboration and with the support of Linklaters, DIGITAL360, CityAngels, with funds from the Otto per Mille della Chiesa Valdese and the patronage of the Municipality of Milan. A booklet will be distributed free of charge in stations, dormitories, canteens and all places frequented by homeless people, to facilitate their access to city services.

The guide, produced as part of the "La città V.I.V.A." project, will be presented at the event "Il mondo sommerso delle persone senza fissa dimora: dai dati attuali alle soluzioni per il futuro" which will be held on January 29, in Milan, at the San Fedele Cultural Centre, where institutions, voluntary associations and companies will use data and experiences to tell the story of the world of these apparently invisible people in order to identify actions for intervention. According to the latest ISTAT data, there are almost 100,000 homeless people in Italy. In Milan, the racCONTAMI2023 survey in June 2023 counted more than 2,000 homeless people, equal to 0.15% of the city's population, of which 1,000 on the streets and 1,000 in night shelters.

"For many years 'Dove andare per...' has been a concrete example of how a network of realities different from each other, but operating with the same objective, can be created from below," emphasises Antonio Mumolo, president of Avvocato di strada ODV. "We are very happy to have realised this new edition of 'Where to go for... Milan'. We hope it will help many people to find a small or big help to get out of their difficult situation'.

"Those who live the hardships of street life learn to survive on what they are given, in a daily struggle of continuous searches and small momentary conquests: for these people it is essential to know where to go to feed themselves, dress themselves, wash themselves, sleep, take care of themselves, and find a job," explains Andrea Rangone, President of DIGITAL360 and Honorary President of the City Angels. The guidebook responds to these practical needs, and was produced thanks to the collaboration of volunteers from various parties involved in various capacities in supporting the homeless and combating social marginalisation, who made themselves available for the project. In order to realise interventions of great social impact for the homeless, we need the commitment of companies, which are now called upon to give people a new opportunity by setting up work placement projects with the support of associations in the sector".
